Software Engineer (C++)

Want to build C++ software that helps power the next generation of autonomous and unmanned systems? At Robotto, we build advanced autonomy and software solutions for drones and unmanned systems. Our technology brings together computer vision, C++ software, autonomy, embedded systems and real-world product development. We are looking for a C++ Software Engineer to join our engineering team and contribute to the software that connects and powers different parts of Robotto's technology platform. This is a hands-on software engineering role for someone who enjoys building reliable systems, solving complex technical problems and seeing their software move beyond development into real-world operation. Más info

Embedded Software engineer

Do you enjoy writing C++ software that interacts directly with hardware and makes complex systems perform reliably in the real world? You will work on embedded software that supports the control and operation of Robotto's drone and unmanned systems. Your work will involve developing reliable C++ software that interfaces with hardware, sensors, motors and other system components. You will work closely with colleagues across control, electronics, computer vision and flight testing to take software from development through integration and into real-world operation. For candidates with motor-control experience, you will also have the opportunity to contribute to the development and improvement of our motor-control capabilities, including Field-Oriented Control (FOC).
